We recognize environmental protection in general, and climate protection in particular, as the tasks where we should, and indeed can, make important contributions. Our commitment is to develop and operate an environmentally sustainable DHL Express Network.

This means we shall strive together in cooperation with all our stakeholders to ensure:

- Environmental protection is an integral part of our corporate strategy, which is aimed at long term value creation for all stakeholders. Minimizing environmental impact and maximizing efficiency is at the core of our strategy.
- In close co-operation with our customers and business partners, we take measures to prevent and minimize our negative environmental impacts, and manage responsibly those that cannot be readily eliminated.
- Compliance with national and international environmental regulations constitutes the minimum standard for us. It is also the starting point for supplementary measures aimed at continually improving our environmental performance.
- We also strive for best practice and participation in voluntary initiatives, such as ISO14001 and the UN Global Compact's Environmental Principles, wherever possible.
- We consider our employees' commitment and active involvement to be an important platform for our efforts and a significant source of innovation. We want to foster this through specific training and motivation.
- The systematic measurement of our environmental performance and enhanced efficiencies in our transportation and logistics processes achieved through technological development and innovation, behavioral changes and planning at all times aiming for continuous improvement.

We detail our performance in regular, transparent environmental reports. In this context, we seek a dialogue with the public and an exchange of information on experience with other – both national and international – stakeholders.
